To Owners of Horses.

A NUMBER of the merchants of Philadelphia, desirous of promoting the internal intercourse of the state, and of facilitating their trade and connection with the western states, have united themselves into an association, under the name of "The Philadelphia and Pittsburgh Transporting Company." Their object is to reduce and equalize throughout the year, the cost of carriage, and to diminish the time required, for the transport of merchandize to the western waters. They therefore purpose to establish Lines of Wagons, to start daily from Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, to run day and night, changing horses every ten miles.

It must be evident to every enlightened person, that the success of the proposed system is most intimately connected with the interests of the whole community. It is important for the interiour of our state, that the trade of the western country should be maintained with the Atlantick cities; to secure which, the plan now contemplated, it is believed, will be effectual. A reduction in the rates, and in the time required for the transportation of Goods, to and from the Atlantick cities to the western waters, will enable the farmers and others to transmit their products to market with facility and cheapness, and procure a supply of foreign articles on more favourable terms. It will also increase the demand for horses, travelling, the value of lands, and in fine, add much to the improvement and importance of the towns and country on the route. Owners of horses, will find constant and profitable employment for them near their homes, which is surely preferable to uncertain employment at a distance.

PROPOSALS WILL BE RECEIVED,

For hauling the Wagons any number of sections of ten miles, each section, going and returning, to be performed within every twenty hours, and persons desirous of contracting will state the section or sections they will contract for.

The loading as far as Carlisle, will not exceed 4000 lbs. and from thence to Pittsburgh 3500, or 3200 when the roads are in a bad state.

The following conditions will be required.

1. Each contractor must give satisfactory security for the faithful performance of his contract.
2. Each contract must be for one year.
3. The contractor to be at every expense for his horses and driver, including the harness.
4. The Wagons must travel two miles an hour, changing horses every ten miles without any unnecessary delay.
5. The contractors will be accountable to the Company, for all delays or damages which may arise from fraud or mismanagement upon the road, embraced within their contract.

Turnpike and Bridge Tolls will be paid by the Company.

Application to be made by Letter as early as possible, directed to the Subscriber, agent for the Philadelphia and Pittsburgh Transporting Company in Philadelphia.

Miscellany.

ON SATURDAY,

AND ABSURD CLEANLINESS.

My wife's, of manners, gentle, pure and kind,
An honest heart—a most ingenuous mind,
Beauteous and gay, domestic without vice,
And with but one fault—indeed she's over nice.
Mops, pails and brushes, dusters, mats and soap,
Are sceptres of controul—her joy, her hope.
Each day we scrub and scour house, yard and limb,
And on a Saturday, ye maids! we swim.

THOUGH Xantippe broke the head o Socrates with a ——, and he had temper to bear it, with this easy remark, "That after Thunder rain generally follows," yet, if we had the old fellow amongst us now, I believe we should try his philosophical patience on a Saturday. The rage of scouring and cleansin, is not peculiar to our house, for I find all my friends complain of the universal deluge on the Saturday. In short, it is the voice of our ladies, and what they call being only clean, is a general inconvenience to business and health.

If I was to give the journal of one of our Saturdays, I believe it might suit half the houses in town. The day of cleaning begins, like the Sabbath of the Jews, on the Friday night, when we are ordered hastily and early to bed, that the dining room may be scrubbed out—or else we are crammed into a little parlour, and smothered, by the way of being cleanly. To accomplish this, the stairs being just scrubbed down, we are all commanded to go up bare-footed, tho' at the risk of a certain ague or sore throat. Early in the morning the servants are rung up, & for the operation of the morning dressed accordingly; and though smart enough on other occasions, yet to see them in their Saturday's garb, for the mop and broom rencounter, you would swear they were sybils, or Norwood fortune-tellers.—One of our girls, who is little and handsome, to accommodate herself to the task, is obliged to lower her head dress half a foot, and put on a close flat mop; as well as to descend from her stilts, which are usually worn instead of shoes; but when out of them she looks like Titania, who had been misled by that merry wag and night wanderer, master Puck.

To get at the breakfast room I am under the necessity of wading over the shoes; and if I am not very accurate in my steerage, I am sure to tumble over a pail, or break my shins across the mop. The weather hath nothing to do with this aquatick operation; frost or snow, dry or wet, the house must be cleaned out that day; and while we are at breakfast, every door and window is opened to give a quick current to the air, that the rooms may be dried soon. By this means, unless clothed in fur, I am perished to death, and sure to take cold.—Arguments avail nothing. Mistress and servants are combined in the watery plot, and swim or drown is the only despotic alternative.

Sometimes I have pleaded for a room that hath not been used in the week, but in vain; the word wash is general and all must float from the garret to the cellar.—I once or twice in my life ventured to take a peep at the cook and the kitchen; but to be sure no fury could look so fierce; her hair was dishevelled about her shoulders—her dressers covered with pots and pans, and her face besmeared with soot and brick dust. The animals too, upon this day of execution, skulk into noles and corners—the dogs retreat with their tails between their legs to the stable, and poor domestic puss is obliged to ascend a beer barrel in the cellar, by way of throne, where she purrs away her time, longing for the dove and the olive branch, as much as Noah did in the old surge beaten ark.

But these misfortunes are not all; my lady wife and all the maids as if by intuition or agreement, or inspiration, or devilish witchcraft, are all in the dumps; they universally put on one face; and by the lip of Hebe I declare, for these last twelve years I have not seen a Saturday smile on their fair faces. I have often thought Mr. Addison took his hint of the first speech in his Cato, from the last day of the week at his house; for great wits are very apt to adopt sublime passages from ludicrous hints; and though some people may call it a parody, I am inclined to believe it an original thought.

The dawn is over cast, the morning lowers,
And heavily in clouds brings on the day;
Th' important Saturday,
The great, th' important, humid Saturday,
Big with the fate of bucket and of broom!

My style, I fear, upon this dark subject, carries with it some pleasantry; and if so it is far from my intention that it should, for if one theme more than another, can bring the chil' of dullness over my intentions 'tis this whenever it arises humidly to my mind.

My miseries are not to be enumerated at once; and I dare say, what is my misfortune is the woeful mischance of many other worthy and unlucky gentlemen.

I am too often troubled with a bilious complaint, which is not very civil in the notice given; and consequently coming upon a person suddenly it puts him to a precipitate retreat; upon which occasions there is no other relief but the temple of Cloa; whereto I as naturally fly, in such a momentous case, as a Portuguese does to a church for protection and relief. Here, ye river Gods, attend! Naiads of the stream, and Nereids of the wave—here possess your own hall.—for it is more fit for fishes than for men. One of your own mermaids hath been before me; and where I meant to place the dignity of my body, I with tears behold it wet—wet—wet! To fly is in vain. I must run the risk of the chin cough or an endless disgrace.

Pity my distress; for 'tis dangerous to pursue the theme further, for fear of greater accidents—Ad meo perpetuum deducite tempora carmen!

This Saturday carries with it a general persecution. It is not that we are driven from room to room—floated from the cellar to the garret—washed out of the house of ease—and starved to death with thorough airs (than which there is nothing worse) but our stomachs, our craving bellies pinch for it too.

Nothing is to be fouled—all is to be reserved for Sunday. The dinner must be made of small scraps; the pantry must be cleared, though the offals are musty, and the bread is mouldy. If a friend, quite regardless of his own felicity, attempts to swim, like the adventurous Leander, thro' files and forests of implements of cleanliness, and gains the fire-side, a thousand apologies are made for Saturday's dinner—with, 'I know him; such a one know's what—and Saturday is Saturday every where.' I feel confused for such excuses; but the laws of Media and Persia will sooner give way, than the adopted tyranny supported once a week in every mansion. I very often, to keep off the ague, draw a cork extraordinary, for there is positively nothing else for it; and if by misfortune a drop of wine sullies the bright bath lackered table, my lady rises wth the dignity of a pontiff, and with a rubber labours for twenty minutes against the spot; for our tables, you must know, ever since we got Spenhamland's receipt for cleaning mahogany, would serve the purpose of looking-glasses and this is the brightest jewel in our diadem. Now, though my lady-wife possesseth the virtues of Dian, yet the plagues of Egypt never came on the natives once a week, to which we are bound to submit, in spite of every argument salutary and festive.

I know but one wedded fair, one who is a happy contradiction to this weekly rule of conduct; which is Bellaflora; who never is disturbed by the washing; who always hath the same table covered, and the same temper to grace it; who never considers cleanliness further than as conducive to decency and health; and then embraces such opportunities, that the very cat of the family shall not be under the distress of wetting her feet. The morning early is used for these matters; the night, late, or absent hours, which fall to the portion of every family. I would not wish the Scotch days of Cromwell, to return amongst us, when houses in the city of Glasgow were only cleansed on family deaths and christenings, which filth Oliver in some respects removed by command to shovel out the dirt. But though cleanliness may be carried to a fault, yet I would rather have it, with all its inconveniences, than filth.—London paper.

[From the New York Mercantile Advertiser, July 28.]

Last evening arrived at this port, the ship Golconda, Capt. Hussey, from Liverpool, which place she left on the 13th of June, and brought papers of that date, and London of the 11th, with which the editors of the Mercantile Advertiser have been favored. They are however barren of news.

Intelligence reached London on the 9th, of the discovery of an important conspiracy at Lisbon; having for its object the dissolution of the government, the transfer of the crown to the young duke of Cardoval, a near relative of the king, and the murder of Marshal Beresford and the other British officers in the Portuguese service.—The chief of the plot was general Andraide, and Baron Erin was implicated. The plan was said to be well organized, and to have been carried into execution on the 5th of June; when the affair was discovered and the conspirators hurried to fort St. Julien.

A paper of yesterday evening says, that the information, which we extracted from a Leeds paper, relative to a "traitorous conspiracy" in the West riding of Yorkshire, is too well founded, and that a simultaneous rising was "unquestionably" intended to take place in the northern and middle counties, on the 9th of this month.—The evening paper professes to "forbear" at present from stating the particulars, and confines itself to saying that seven persons have been arrested at Sheffield and ten near Wakefield.

HISTORICAL CURIOSITY.

During the troubles in the reign of Charles I. a country girl came to London in search of a place as a servant maid, but not succeeding, she applied herself to carrying out beer from a brew-house, and was one of those called tub-women. The brewer, observing a well looking girl in this occupation, took her into his own family as a servant, and after a while married her: but he died whilst she was yet a young woman, and left a large fortune. The business of the brewery was dropped, and the young woman was recommended to Mr. Hyde, as a gentleman of skill in law, to settle her husband's affairs. Hyde (who was afterwards Earl of Clarendon) finding the widow's fortune very considerable married her. Of this marriage there was no other issue than a daughter, who was afterwards the wife of James II. and mother of Mary and Anne, queens of England.

PITTSBURGH.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 8, 1817.

The young men of this city, friendly to the election of Gen. Heister, and to an independent nomination for members of the State Legislature are requested to meet at the house of John M'Clintock, on Saturday evening, (9th inst.) at seven o'clock

A meeting was held at Warrenton, Ohio, the 4th ult. to devise means for opening a communication between the waters of Ohio and Lake Erie, through the Mahoning and Grand rivers. A committee was then appointed to explore the route, and determine on its practicability.

MR. MONROE.

The following is given as the true account of the dates at which President Monroe appears in the history of our country. Born in Virginia in 1759, he was in the army in 1776, and was wounded at the battle of Trenton, Dec. 26, 1776. Gen. Washington then gave him a Captaincy, & he was aid to Gen. Lord Sterling, and soon after col. of a Regiment. In 1782 he was in the legislature of Virginia, and in 1783 a member of the Old Congress. In 1787 he was again in the Legislature of Virginia, and in 1788 in the Convention which ratified the Constitution. In 1790 he was a Senator of the United States. In 1794 he was Minister of the United States in France, and upon his return was Governor of Virginia, and continued as long as the Constitution of the state allowed. In 1803 he was sent by Mr. Jefferson to France, on the negociation for Louisiana. In 1805 he was appointed Minister at London, and in 1805 he went on a special mission to Madrid. On his return he was again in the Legislature of Virginia, and in 1811 was Governor. In 1811 he was Secretary of State, and in the dangers of 1814 was appointed to be Secretary of War. He is now President of the United States, the highest honor his country has to bestow.

MEADVILLE, AUGUST 1.

The Execution.—On Saturday last, the sentence of the law was executed on the body of Speth Vanhollandt, for the murder of Hugh Fitzpatrick, agreeably to his death warrant. Early in the morning a large concourse of people assembled at and in the vicinity of the prison. About 12 o'clock the unhappy wretch was brought forth. He proceeded to the place of execution, a distance of half a mile, on foot, and ascended the platform, elevated 10 feet from the ground, with firmness and composure.—He had repeatedly declared it his fixed determination, if he could, to break the neck of the person appointed to hang him. In this resolution, at the moment the executioner was preparing to fasten the fatal rope, the criminal sprang at him and violently precipitated him from the platform, and then leaped from it himself—"Damn you," said he, "did I not tell you I would serve you so?" and then, addressing himself to the guard, said—"had I been for the d——d rope, I should have jumped on him." Having re-ascended the platform, and the halter secured, he was asked by the sheriff if he had any thing to say, then was the time. He obeyed, "I am an assassinated man; I am innocent—I die for a crime committed by another person—I have nothing more to say—If Mr. Alden chooses to speak he may." A short but impressive address was then made by the rev. Mr. Alden, and closed with a most fervent prayer to the throne of grace in behalf of the unhappy victim. He was then asked, "are you ready, St. George?" "Yes," said he, "my time is spent, may God have mercy on my soul," and was immediately launched into eternity.

It is supposed that not less than 4000 people were assembled to witness the solemn and affecting scene.

The editor of the New-York Gazette states we are requested to state, by a gentleman who has connexions in Lisbon, that London papers by the Golconda have confirmed the particulars relative to an intended insurrection at that place. It is said that a rising and a massacre was part of without foundation. The reports of an intention, was put in circulation by some wicked wag, who, no doubt, was amused at the consternation it produced.

The news-papers have already appointed Governors for the new territory of Alabama, which reminds us of Stephen's phrase of the play, of Ollapod's shooting the partridge before they were hatched. But whether of those appointments, it seems must have the sanction of the President, and according to the provisions of our Constitution, has at least something to say in affairs of that kind. If the territory should receive two Governors, as Beau Tib had two dinners, the affair might, probably, be accommodated. The persons named in print are Doctor Bibb, of Georgia, and Mr. Lee, one of the auditors of the treasury. We are much afraid that this latter gentleman will, as to the governorship in question, find himself in the situation which his name indicates, as the Doctor will, in all likelihood, get to windward of him.—Doctor Bibb has strong claims on the Executive; and so, for aught we know, may Mr. Lee have. But we really think that the friends of both, and the friends of all others who may hope for the place, would do well to let President Monroe choose for himself, and not attempt to forestall his judgment by pushing names about in the newspapers. Nat. Reg.

NORFOLK, July 23.

LARGE DIVIDENDS.

Messrs. Editors.—As an instance of uncommon prosperity, it is going the round of publication, that the Marine Insurance Company of Philadelphia, divided twenty-five per cent on its capital for the last six months.

The Marine Company of Norfolk, declared the following dividends---viz:

In October, 1810, Twenty per cent.
October, 1811, Thirty per cent.
April, 1811, Ten per cent.
October, 1812, Twenty-five per cent.

That is eighty-five per cent in two years ---although at the rate of twenty-five per cent for six months, the amount would exceed the dividends declared by the Norfolk Insurance Company, it is very much doubted, whether any company ever divided more largely in two successive years. Marine insurance dividends are very uncertain; for, notwithstanding these great dividends the Marine Insurance Company here, has divided, since its establishment, (fifteen years) only thirteen dollars and thirty-three and one-third cents, per cent one year with another; that is, in fifteen years, an original stockholder, has received double the amount of the capital invested.

Some doubts, (says the Washington City Gazette,) seem to be entertained by the editor of the ESSEX REGISTER, as to the hearing of fish. He asserts that as the fact has not been established, the injury done to the Potomac fisheries, by the steam boats, must be merely problematical. It certainly is not necessary to recal to that gentleman's mind, the well known and established principle, in natural philosophy, that vibration and sound are better propagated by dense bodies, than by rare ones; and he cannot be ignorant of the experiment of Dr. Franklin, who thus ascertained, that if two stones were struck together, under water, the sound could be heard at the distance of a mile or two, by a person whose head was immersed in the water.

We shall give the opinion of the celebrated Dr. Darwin on the subject, as having more weight than any thing we can advance.

"The organs of hearing," says he, "belonging to fish, are much less complicated than of quadrupeds, as the fluid they are immersed in so much better conveys its vibrations: and it is probable that some shell fish, which have twisted shells, like the cochlea, and semicircular canals of the ears of men and quadrupeds, may have no appropriated organ for perceiving the vibration of the element they live in; but may, by their spiral form, be in a manner all ear."

Captain Manby's Invention.—During the gale, on Wednesday last, the Spanish brig Bilbaino, from London, bound to Bilboa, with a valuable cargo of merchandize, drove on shore near Rottingdean. Soon after she struck, the agent for the use of capt. Manby's invention attended with the apparatus, and a mortar was planted on the summit of the cliff, from which was discharged a barbed shot, with a rope attached thereto, coiled on a frame for the purpose, in the hope of lodging it somewhere about the vessel. The first shot failed in effect, but a second left the rope pending from her broken formasts towards the deck. The tempest tossed seamen did not appear to know the precise use it was expected they should make of it; but appropriate gestures from those on land soon conveyed to them that necessary information, and the whole crew, numbering twelve souls, were in a short space of time rescued from their perilous situation, and with a facility and ease that amazed and delighted all present. As the tide receded, the hull of the vessel was left dry, which had received but little injury, and the cargo none.—London Paper June 9.

The report that Col. Burr sold an estate to Mr. Astor, of New-york, some years since for 40,000 dollars retaining a right to redeem it within a certain number of years—and that for this right of redeeming Mr. A. has lately given Col. B. 100,000 dollars—has been formally contradicted in the New-York Evening Post.

SONG—FROM MOORE'S LALLA ROOKH.

BENDEMEER's STREAM.

THERE's a bower of roses by Bendemeer's stream,
And the nightingale sings round it all the day long;
In the time of my childhood 'twas like a sweet dream
To sit in the roses and hear the bird's song.
That bower and its music I never forget;
But oft when alone in the bloom of the year
I think—is the nightingale singing there yet?
Are the roses still bright by the calm Bendemeer?

No—the roses soon wither'd that hung o'er the wave;
But some blossoms were gathered while freshly they shone,
And a dew was distilled from their flowers, that gave
All the fragrance of summer when summer was gone.
Thus memory draws from delight, ere it dies,
An essence that breathes of it many a year,
Thus bright to my soul, as 'twas then to my eyes,
Is that bower on the banks of the calm Bendemeer.
